ESMA Marketing Communication Guidelines

On 2 August 2021, ESMA published the translated versions of its marketing communications guidelines⁸ that will enter into force in early February 2022.

The guidelines will apply to all marketing communications addressed to investors or potential investors for UCITS and AIFs. They establish common principles on the identification of such marketing communications; the description of risks and rewards of purchasing units or shares of an AIF or units of a UCITS in an equally prominent manner; and the fair, clear and not misleading character of marketing communications; taking into account online aspects of such marketing communications. Requirements on information on past performance and expected future performance and information on sustainability related aspects are also addressed. They do not intend to replace existing national requirements to the extent these are compatible with any existing harmonised EU rules.

In accordance with Article 16(3) of the ESMA Regulation⁹ national competent authorities and financial market participants must make every effort to comply with guidelines and recommendations.

New Executive Orders for Foreign Funds

On 1 July 2021, Denmark transposed the CBF Directive requirements through two new executive orders, replacing the previous 2014 versions. The orders cover the marketing of foreign UCITS in Denmark and foreign AIFs to retail investors:

- A local Danish representative is no longer required for foreign UCITS or AIFs marketed or distributed to Danish retail investors.
- Specified facilities services that the fund is required to maintain to all investors must be provided to Danish investors in Danish.

- The name and address of the entity in charge of subscriptions, redemptions, and payments and details on how investors can redeem or exchange units and benefit from payments

FINMA Recommendation to Portfolio Managers and Trustees on Licence Applications

Portfolio managers and trustees now require a licence. While some 2,400 of those already operating prior to the 1 January 2020 have registered with FINMA, only 180 have to date submitted a licence application. Therefore, FINMA issued a press release¹⁶ on 17 September 2021 highlighting that if licence applications are not received before the 31 December 2022 deadline, companies could be criminally sanctioned.

FINMA also drew attention to the provisions on the duty to register client advisers (in force since 21 January 2021). This registration may also be necessary for foreign financial intermediaries, particularly where they advise private clients in Switzerland. Since 1 August 2021 this has also applied to client advisers of foreign banks' and financial institutions' Swiss representative offices. FINMA has indicated it will spot check for compliance and reminded financial service providers and their client advisers that any breach of the duty to register is a criminal offence.

- Provide Australian licensing relief to FFSPs that are already similarly licensed and regulated in other jurisdictions, that want to enter the Australian market
- Provide Australian licensing relief to FFSPs not based in Australia that provide financial services to their Australian clients

- Fast-track the licensing process for FFSPs that require a licence to operate in Australia

The consultation (which outlines questions to discuss preferred options and their implications) follows an Australian Government announcement that it would consult on options to restore regulatory reliefs for FFSPs that wish to establish more permanent operations in Australia. Japan

Proposed Changes to FIEA

On 19 May 2021, the Diet enacted amendments to the Financial Instruments and Exchange Act ("FIEA") introducing new exemptions for foreign investment managers. A consultation on draft regulations implementing the amended FIEA closed on 6 September 2021. The amended FIEA will come into effect later this year, within six months after its promulgation.

Two new exemptions are being proposed as part of the Japanese Government's commitment to expanding Japan's role as an international financial hub.

The first proposed foreign investor exemption would mean that a general partner may offer limited partnership interests to investors in Japan and manage the partnership assets by investing more than 50% of such assets in securities and derivatives without any registration or license under the FIEA by filing a notification with the relevant regulator and satisfying certain conditions.

The second foreign investment manager temporary exemption is intended for foreign investment managers who wish to commence their operations in Japan by completing the investment management registration process or by applying for the existing exemption known as the specially permitted business for qualified institutional investors (QII Exemption) or the foreign investor exemption referenced above within five years. Under this exemption, a foreign investment manager may engage in a list of specially permitted businesses for a transition period through its local office in Japan for up to five years by filing a notification with the regulator.
